

IREF(INSTITUTE OF EDUCATIONAL AND TRAINING RESEARCH)

IREF, founded in 1968 by the ACLI to design and carry out research activities in the social field, is today one of the leading social research institutes that can boast forty years of experience and numerous research projects carried out on behalf of the ACLI system as well as at local, national and European level. The social surveys carried out by the Research Institute are characterised by method, involvement and passion thanks to a highly qualified and well-established staff that sees social research as a generative practice.

The principal aim of IREF is to “encourage the knowledge on cultural, economic and social issues, considering their historical dimension and referring to personal, educational, scholastic, training, professional, health and social security condition of workers and the relative families, associations and institutions as agencies of cultural, economic and social progress”. From its constitution (1968), IREF has conducted more than 400 research-project financed by international organisations, national and local public administrations, economic and social institutions and third-sector umbrella organisations.

IREF focuses its research activities on the following topics: labour market; youth and education, migration and social inclusion, welfare reforms; active citizenship and voluntary organisations. research style is characterised by a deep combination of quantitative (survey and secondary analysis) and qualitative (case studies, focus groups, focalized interview) methods.
