

Girl Power PILOT TEST

Escaping from Afghanistan and becoming a refugee was the toughest event in our lives we experienced. I was so scared of being alone without an identity, in a new country, but after joining Girl Power trainings, I can now happily say, I have a strong network, I feel belonging and I can use my passion to coach younger girls and be a good role model”

(Quote from one of the Girl Leaders)

Girl Power launched leadership & mentorship program during SIMCAS pilot test for refugee & asylum seekers living in refugee centre & disadvantage communities. The SIMCAS Pilot project took place in a different area of Denmark. The target group were refugee women & girls age 16+

Girl Power Leadership & Mentorship Program had main objectives: to empower refugee women & new comers in Denmark by providing educational & sporting opportunities; to encourage healthy life-style amongst refugees; to create networking & job opportunities for refugees; promoting inclusion and diversity, and active participation in society; to mentor refugees to own their voices and their stories.

The program consisted of three leadership & mentorship academies, and weekly football training session, and participation in a football tournament.

This program was developed after conducting a re-search amongst refugee women to understand their needs and develop an innovative program that meet their needs.

During the Girl Power leadership & mentorship program the participants were trained to discover their Give Back to the community so the organisation could support them on their projects. The mentors supported them in their Purpose discovery journey
