

SIMCAS OPERATIONAL TOOLKIT

The toolkit for the development of immigrant integration interventions through sport represents the main outcome of the SIMCAS project and is intended to be versatile, and flexible but detailed, able to provide sport operators with a set of guidelines and suggestions to be used for the effective inclusion of immigrants.

The main output of SIMCAS project is a Tool Kit that will enable sport operators to design and implement new projects based on the innovative approaches developed by SIMCAS.

It is an operational toolkit able to provide sport organisation and coaches a set of guidelines and suggestions to be used for the actual inclusion of immigrants through physical and sport activities. A tool that gives strategies, indications, advice and practical examples for immigrant integration projects through sport and includes tools or designing, managing, monitoring and evaluating sport-based projects.

The content is very concise and schematic, with links to insights, models, and management tools/platforms.

The toolkit is divided into FIVE parts:

Part 1: toolkit presentation;

Part 2: Simcas methodological approach,

Part 3 tools for an effective and sustainable project;

Part 4 Simcas pilot test;

Part 5 Simcas sustainability report

The second part gives useful suggestions and practical guidelines for implementing the key elements of the methodological approach and additional guidelines guidance for specific critical areas: penitentiary institutions, urban ghettos, refugee camps.

The third part provides tools capable of:

- lead in a process of analysis of the capacity of the organisation to develop lines of intervention for the integration of migrants living in critical areas;
- accompany the development of a project proposal;
- encourage the active involvement of participants and stakeholders;
- support the process of monitoring and evaluation of the intervention.

The fourth part presents the pilot tests as goods practices for the development of immigrant integration intervention through sport.

The last part offers insights and tools for the sustainability and continuity of sports projects starting from one of the outputs of the SIMCAS project - the report on sustainability.

The toolkit is available in English on the SIMCAS website in a printable version and a web version as an easy-to-use interactive tool. The printable version will also be available in Danish, German, Greek, Italian, Slovenian, Spanish.
